WHO WAS OLIVO ANDREAZZA

Born at Quero in the Province of Belluno in 1920, Olivo Andreazza grew up in a “tranquil and industrious” family until he was called up to arms in 1940 and sent with his regiment to the Balkans and then to Greece.

Just after 8 September 1943, he was captured by German troops and deported as a prisoner of war to a concentration camp, Stalag XI B, near Hannover.

Having survived two years of concentration camp, he saw the Allied troops arrive to put an end to his imprisonment. He finally managed to return home in 1945 but during his long absence many things had changed and the following year he was forced to emigrate, as his elder brothers had done before, in search of work.

In 1946 he moved to Belgium to work in a coal mine in the Mons basin.

Two years later, in 1948, he returned to Italy and married Vilma. The couple moved to Turin where they lived for over thirty years while he was employed by FIAT as a worker specialised in the maintenance of production machinery.

In 1980 he returned to the Veneto and settled with his wife at Cornuda (Treviso), where he stayed until his death in 2003.

In his will, Olivo Andreazza left a donation to the Fondazione Giorgio Cini, which he had visited to attend a lecture in the 1980s, at the time of the presidency of Bruno Visentini.
